“ I always remembered him as a very bright and outgoing person never missing an opportunity to help anybody he could whenever the opportunity arose. He is a very generous young man with lots of Love to give for everyone. Whenever someone needed a hand he always took out the time to see that their project or projects were completed even if it meant putting his off for a few hours. He is a very compassionate person to be around and he would fill the room with laughter. When it laughter you could be in a very sad mood he would just smile and everyone would just seem to get right out of the sad mood right they were in, that is what he brought to us. And that is laughter.
