“ Happy birthday to the first love of my life, my junior high school crush -- Anthony, never Tony. He wrote in my senior yearbook that I was something special to him (me!). He continued: "Today I am truly sorry for not taking you to junior prom. You were always kind, considerate and understanding toward me." I will always remember him fondly. And with a head full of curly dark hair.

“ We grieve with you, Me and my wife moved across the street from Tony in 1998, a young couple in our first house and Tony was the first to greet us. Tony has been close to our family, sharing my kids birthday and graduation parties, meeting our extended families, him seeking constant advice on his Cell phones and us talking about our daily battle with landscaping. We moved last year and we still stayed in touch by phone and online. Rest in Peace my Friend.
