“ I am so very saddened by Chris’s passing. I had the honor of teaching him saxophone lessons for 8 years. I enjoyed my lessons with him so much. It wasn’t only because he was so incredibly talented, but because of the awesome person he was. Chris brought a smile to my face each week I saw him, he was so very personable and had a wonderful sense of humor. He had an very bright light that burned deep inside and it exuded from his very being, and I was so lucky that it was shared with me each week. He worked hard and expected greatness from himself- even with the simple work like yard maintenance. I hired him to weed my gardens, which he did with such quality control- there were never weeds left. I believe that although he appreciated being paid, he did this tedious job not for the money, but to help me out. This was something he did because it was me that asked. This is the kind person Chris was. I was always so very appreciative of his weekly hard work he put into his saxophone playing too. He had incredible talent. Watching Chris’s skills grow over the years was so fun! I could see early on that he would be great. His advanced skill brought him to the Cleveland Youth Wind Symphony which is an incredible honor and achievement for local young musicians. Most of all, I enjoyed talking to him and getting to know him. He was very intelligent, kind, and loving. From all the conversations we had, it was very clear how much he loved his family and his friends. He would tell me fun adventures he experienced with you, and shared difficulties and heartache when sad things happened to those he loved. My heart goes out to all of you. I know his passing will leave a hole in you, like it has for me, that cannot be filled. May his internal light that shone so bright be passed on to all of us so we may spread his light and joy to others.
