“ Seven months have passed since you left me and not a day goes by that I don't think of you. I still want to share things with you, and still miss your presence in my home and in my life. You were more than my father—you were my friend, my confidant, and my person.

Caring for you and having you with me during your final days was one of the greatest privileges of my life, even though saying goodbye was the hardest thing I've ever done. The house is quieter now, but my heart is still filled with the love, laughter, and memories we shared.

I miss you more than words can express, and I will carry you with me always. Until we meet again, I love you, Dad.

“ It has been six months since you left, and I still miss you every single day. Some days it honestly feels impossible that you are gone. I still think about calling for you, talking to you, or hearing your voice in the house.

You were more than my father — you were my person. Thank you for letting me care for you, love you, and walk beside you through your final days. Even through the heartbreak, I would do it all over again just to have that time with you.

There is such a deep emptiness without you here, but there is also so much love that will never leave me. I carry you with me always Dad.

I love you Dad You don't always need to hear that to know it. 😞

“ I miss our evening chats while laying in bed eating snacks and the crazy shit you would say. Those are the moments that I play in my head over and over and wishing I had more of them. I am soo grateful for the time we had together. It’s been 2 months since you left and everyday has been hard but I told you I would be okay and I’m trying to keep that promise. I love ❤️ you Dad. ☐

“ I didn't know you very long, but I always enjoyed coming up to Ohio to visit you. I knew when we came in the house you would be sitting in your chair watching your rodeos or old westerns. You were always so happy to see us and made me feel welcomed, like I was one of your grandchildren. I will miss you and our visits, but I am happy you are at peace.

“ I will always remember our trips to go fishing in your huge (at the time) pick up truck. You would put your arm around me as you shifted gears and I would be so proud to be the little boy going to fish with his Grandpa. I love you and cherish the our fun times together.
