“ Although I only knew Frank for a little over two months, he seemed like a buddy I've known all my life. He was always quick with a corny joke or a story about going to the Nascar races or his adventures on the open road on his Harley. He had a kind heart under that tough exterior and would go out of his way to help people. I will miss his kid-like sense of humor and the way he made each day that much better. R.I.P. my friend.
