“ I spent many hours in conversations with Howard, spanning the last 35 years. One that still makes me chuckle involved a used car that Howard was interested in. The salesman told him that the agency had just acquired it, had not had time to prep it, and that the previous owner was a local tv personality. Howard opened the door and was completely taken aback by the interior of the car. There was clutter and trash everywhere. Howard couldn't believe that this highly paid individual would drive around in a car full of papers, trash, and junk. We both laughed heartily.
