i haven't seen jake in a couple years, maybe even three or four. the times i spent with jake were memorable, though i won't go into details on here, i can laugh looking back at the times we spent together, the things jake said and did. he used to make fun of the way i talked, the things i said, but the truth is he was the one filled with infectious humor. not even death can separate us from our memories with jake. namaste
