“ *Kathy,
Your Aunt Jane was usually quiet when she was in our group, but always ready to engage in a good conversation. She loved to talk about the Lord and about what she was reading or studying in the Bible. And she often asked insightful questions from her studies. I also enjoyed talking with her about some of her travels, especially to places where both of us had visited in the West.
As you walk through this season of grieving the loss of another family member, I know you have been down this path too many times already. We are praying for you and we will continue to pray for you in the months ahead. May you find the peace of God through the reading of Scripture and seeking there the important truths of eternal life. I would like to encourage you to read through the gospel of John in the New Testament. It has been one of Jane's favorite books, and a great source of help.
May God bless you,
