“ I remember the countless times; you picked me up from school and we played taxi driver, we watched Casper the ghost in your room on your comfy chair, and ate our favorite food (Bean burritos from Taco Bell). Now that your gone, I cherish these memories more than anything. I love you and ad whenever I take a taxi or eat a bean burrito I will always think of you. Love you and miss you Grandma. - Ryan

“ I cannot tell you how in shock I still am, Grandma. I literally think my heart is telling my brain that this still is not true. I am so sorry for not being able to say goodbye and it will always live heavy with me. I love you so much and will miss you everyday.

I know this said to share a memory.. So I will..

I remember that many times that we came up to see everyone, especially when I was younger, I would always have a hard time sleeping. And one night I remember just like it was yesterday. I was up because I couldn't sleep, either because it was from being in a different house, or on the couch in the living room (after grandpa went to bed after his westerns), or maybe because I was just still wound up from the trip up. No matter what it was, I remember grandma not being able to sleep and coming into the living room to see why I was up. She gathered me and took me into the kitchen to make me Hot Chocolate. As I watched her, I noticed that she was getting out a pot and milk. MILK!?!? I said grandma, "What are you doing with milk?" (I was young and only used water like some kind of animal) but right after I asked her she said "Well milk will help you sleep and it tastes SO much better" and she was right. But before it was done and we drank it and at that moment everyone was asleep but just us and it seemed we were the only two people in the world at the moment.

The reason I say that is such a prominent memory is because the emphasis of the last sentence in that paragraph. She made me feel like I was the only one in the world. And the best part is, she did that EVERY DAY, not just the night she made me the crazy delicious hot chocolate with MILK. She made me feel special EVERYTIME and because of that she made me realize that I felt that way because I was special. Then, I just look around and realize she did that for EVERYONE and she loved all of us with every ounce she could. She was an amazing woman and she will certainly not be forgotten by me or anyone who met her.

I am so sorry and internally devastated that I cannot make your funeral grandma. I am so so sorry. But I know I will see you again and I know you are watching over me everyday as you did when you were on this planet and as you will in the next life. Thank you for EVERYTHING.

I love you so much, Grandma.
