“ Stan was above all, a giver. He gave his time, his money, his knowledge, etc. when he saw someone in need. But what made him even more special is that as he did that, he also acknowledged people for their gifts and talents while holding them accountable to reach their highest potential. He never stopped trying to become the best version of Stan and encouraged others to join him on this journey. He will be remembered for his huge heart, his love of music, his passion for sailing, for being a great friend and so much more. He will be missed by so many.....
